SIGMOD 2012 – Call for Workshop Proposals

http://www.sigmod.org/2012/calls.shtml

Several workshops are held together with the annual SIGMOD/PODS conference. The deadline for the receipt of proposals for SIGMOD-sponsored workshops to be co-located with SIGMOD/PODS 2012 is:

Friday, September 30, 2011

Workshops will take place before and possibly after the SIGMOD/PODS conference, depending on room availability. In particular, it is expected that most workshops will take place on Sunday, May 20, two will take place on Monday, June 21, and some may take place on Friday, May 25. Workshop organizers may express preferences, but the workshops chair decides on the schedule. Workshops that run for anywhere between half a day and a full day are possible.

The logistics of the workshops will be done with the help of the SIGMOD 2012 organization. Specifically, SIGMOD 2012 will take care of facilities, catering, and registration for all workshops. To enable this, breaks must be coordinated.

The organizers of accepted workshops are required to announce the workshop and call for papers, solicit submissions, conduct the reviewing process, and decide upon the final workshop program. In addition, each workshop must prepare its own proceedings, which must be made available for inclusion in the ACM Digital Library.

Publication of calls for papers and participation as well as eventual workshop reports in SIGMOD Record are encouraged.

Further inquiries should be sent to the SIGMOD 2012 Workshops Chair:
